ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A liquid crystal display includes a supporting portion having a connecting end connected non-removably to a liquid crystal display panel, and an engaging end opposite to the connecting end, a base connected detachably to the engaging end of the supporting portion, and an engaging unit disposed on the engaging end of the supporting portion and the base for providing a releasable engagement between the supporting portion and the base.